DEFENSE INTELLIGENCE SCHOOL AND CENTER

- Captain Bates' letter postulated four broad tasks:

1. Instruction. Develop and present instructional material: to support the Intelligence Career Development Program; to prepare military and civilian intelligence professionals for positions in joint and combined staffs, the national agencies, and the Defense Attache System; for selected foreign military intelligence professionals.

2. Coordination. Coordinate intelligence education and training throughout the Department of Defense and be the point of contact for the Department for such coordination with other elements of the Executive Branch.

3. Doctrine. Develop and promulgate joint intelligence doctrine.

4. Research. Do original research into intelligence methodologies, techniques, organization and doctrine, coordinate such research within the Department of Defense, and be the Departmental point of contact for such research done elsewhere.

- DIS proposal would encompass all four tasks.

- DIS proposal defines scope of each task within setting of capabilities and resources.
